THE “AUTHORIZATION AND AGREEMENT” SCAM

To hide their stealing of translators' CVs, scammers from Palestine/Gaza came up with a “creative” and “innocent” scheme: since 2011, they've been asking translators to sign an unidentified document called “Authorization and Agreement” with promises of future jobs (“you will get benefit by translating projects”). In it, one can read the essence of the scam: “we will use a free email which will be put inside your CV”. That's it: the incautious translator signing this will be, in fact, giving scammers carte blanche to scam and use his/her CVs any way they see fit. To their gain, of course.

When challenged, scammers will wickedly respond that they can use other people's CVs, because they got their permission to “market” them. THEY LIE!

First, they COULDN'T CARE LESS FOR MARKETING ANYBODY'S CV. They just want to market themselves with third-party professional credentials, because they have none.

Second, they NEVER TELL THEIR CLIENTS-VICTIMS THEY'RE DEALING WITH GHOSTS CREATED BY THEM! And, if they tricked some translators into accepting such “marketing” proposal, the fact is that they'll just scam anybody's CV. The “marketing authorization” (aka “Permission Sheet”, “Authorization and Agreement”, “Authorization and Permission” or “Permission, Authorization and Agreement”) they claim to have is just a hoax and an excuse for their criminal activities. They'll even produce “agreements” signed by ghosts...

SEE HOW THE CV SCAM WORKS:

Using a FALSE translator with a FAKE CV, scammers succeeded in getting a job from a careless Brazilian translation company

Then, they go online trying to find a $0.02 translator to get the job done (even attaching the original PO to their spam emails!)

One final word about the infamous request for “CV and cover letter”: recognizing that they can't write anything in proper English, scammers always ask their victims for a “cover letter” together with their CVs. Here's why: the CV will be modified at their will; the name will be a fake one or even the victim's real name and the email will be one created and operated by the scammer. The “cover letter” will become the body of the email sent to “clients”.
